TO CLOSE THE SALOONS.

First Ward Citizens Organize to Defeat Applicants for Liceuses.

The people of the city who desire to see the saloon or some particular saloon abolished are organizing in all the wards of the city and preparing to make a fight before the Board of County Commissioners in June, when a number of applications for licenses will be passed upon. Organizations have been formed in a number of the wards, with committeemen for each of the precincts, whose duty it is to canvass the precinct and circulate the remonstrances. The Eighth ward is said to be well organized, for at least a half dozen remonstrances are in circulation against saloon keepers of the ward being granted licenses this coming June.

A typical meeting of the anti-saloon people was held at the Woodruff-avenue United Presbyterian Church last evening. It was a meeting of the voters of the First ward, and the meeting, although not largely at-tended, was enthusiastic and earnest. There were members of all the churches of the ward present. Rev. B. W. Cooper acted as chairman and F. A. Hendricks as secretary. It was the sentiment of the meeting the Nicholson law is a good thing, but its friends will have to be awake to get it enforced. One man said there are altogether too many saloons in the First ward ere being at least fifteen. A number o une, and the purpose of the meeting was to form an organization to defeat these re-newals. A committee was appointed to find out just what saloons are asking for renewals. A man was appointed to circulate the remonstrances in each of the precincts of the ward. It was stated that the movement was devoid of creed or poliics. As a political move the ministers isked that they be left off the committee of vice presidents. They said they thought should not be confined to the churches. Two or three elderly Presbyterians wanted the pastors to lead in the fight, and said ley would follow where their pastors led preachers were victorious, however, hey were left off the committee. This week a remonstrance against each saloon in the ward which will apply for a renewal will be started in circulation. A rerance signed by a majority of the resnts of the ward will defeat the grantof a license, and the anti-saloon people the First ward expect to be able to close east three or four of the saloons. All of this is in anticipation of the prolgation of the new laws before the meeting of the County Commissioners, which ype and a part of the sheets are printed, but as they must be bound and sent out to the counties and the receipts of all the inty auditors for them be received at the office of the Secretary of State before the Governor can issue the proclamation, this is somewhat doubtful at the present time.

James Harris and Andrew Meier were arrested last evening by patrolmen Webb and Smith, each charged with assault and battery. Meier is a working man, living on South Pine street. Harris is a traveling man. Last evening Meier found his wife and Harris walking together on South Pennsylvania street. Without a formal introduction Meler made himself known and proceeded to give Harris a thrashing. He succeeded fairly well, for when Harris was brought to headquarters his lip was cut and swollen, his nose was bleeding, his eye was black and his clothing was dusty and dirty. Harris says Meier labored under a false impression, as he knew Mrs. Meier false impression, as he knew Mrs. Meier and simply walked across the street with her. Had it not been for her Harris would probably have been seriously injured, for her screams brought assistance to him.

WON IT RATHER EASILY. Indianapolis Takes the First Game

with Kansas City. Indianapolis is in front again and all the baseball enthusiasts in the city rejoice in consequence. Motz's men earned the coveted position by defeating Kansas City vesterday with comparative ease. It was a fine crowd that welcomed them home, two thousand people being at the grounds, and nobody regretted going out either. Cross was in the box for Indianapolis and was up to his usual fine form, the visitors get-Made perfect by S-a-n-a-d-o-r ting but ten well scattered hits off him, three of which were scratches. He was steady as a clock, giving only one base on balls and he and McFarland kept the base runners so close to the corners that the Kansas City score shows no stolen bases. Captain Manning presented a pitcher new to Indianapolis in the person of a young man named Stultz. Indianapolis warmed to young Mr. Stultz in commendable fashion, hitting him freely throughout the game. It is true that several of the hits were on the lucky order, but, at the same time the pitcher was touched up very freely, and it is only by an unusual circumstance that Indianapolis failed to add three or four more runs in the ninth inning. The game was comparatively free from errors, McCarthy having the only one for Indianapolis, and that an excusably wild throw in the eighth inning. The visitors gave their pitcher good support, though there were one or two errors of judgment and are not apparent in the score. Probably the prettiest fielding was done by Manning and Newell, while Hernon and McCarthy each had some clever catches. One of the features, as usual, was Hogan's base running, and there is no doubt whatever that he will easily lead the Western League players in this respect.

Nichol made a desperate attempt to reach on the fly, but failed and, kicking the ball, enabled Hogan to make three bases on it McCarthy's sacrifice scored the run. Newell hit a hard grounder which the pitcher diverted, but which nobody could reach until the runner had crossed first. Canavan sacrificed and Motz brought Newell home with a clean single to center. McFarland struck out. Kansas City came to the front with two runs in the last half, Hernon and Connaughton hitting safe, Nichol sacrificing and Klusman getting a single, which sent Hernon in. Connaughton scored on the attempt to catch Klusman at sec-ond, Canavan holding the ball a trifle too long. Hatfield flew to Motz and Bergen forced Klusman out at second. Neither team scored in the second inning, though Gettinger led off with a safe hit. In the third, with one out, Newell hit safe to right. Canavan flew to Bergen, but Motz got a base on balls and McFarland's single to left drove Newell across the plate. The visitors, however, were not to be shaken off so easily, and after Hernon had scratched out a single, Connaughton moved him along with a clean hit to center. Nichol hit to Cross, who threw Connaughton out at second. Klusman's single to left scored Her-Hatfield flew to Gettinger, and Bergen struck out.

Indianapolis won the game in the fourth inning, taking a lead that the visitors never stood a show to overcome. Roat and Cross hit safe, and a passed ball advanced them. Hogan hit to short and the ball was fielded to the plate too late to catch Roat, who scored on it, Hogan getting a life. He stole second, and, after McCarthy had gone out on a fly to Rupert, on which Cross scored gan fin. Canavan sacrificed and Motz's single sent Newell home. McFarland flew to Connaughton, rettring the side. In the seventh the home team took on another, Motz getting a base on balls and scoring on McFarland's single and a wild throw by Stultz into the bleachers. McFarland was playing well off second, when Gettinger hit a hot liner right into Connaughton's hands and the latter running across second completed an unassisted double play. Roat hit safe to center, but Cross forced him out at second on a hit to Manning.

In the eighth Kansas City scored couple of runs. Connaughton getting a base on balls and reaching home on Klusman's hard two-base hit to left. McCarthy's wild throw moved Klusman up a base, and he scored on Hatfield's sacrifice, Indianapolis had the bases filled in the ninth. Motz led with a three-bagger clear over back of the bulletin board, and McFarland sent him home with a single to left. Gettinger and Roat hit safe, and with the bases full and nobody out there was a beautiful prospect. Cross, however, hit to Stultz, who threw McFarland out at home, Cross being easily doubled with him at first. Hogan flew to Nichol. Kansas City went out in easy fashion after Motz had captured Rupert's hot liner. Score:

VICTORIA'S BIRTHDAY.

It Marks a Great Epoch in English History-A Long Reign.

Chicago Times-Herald. The Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India will have attained her seventy-sixth birthday on the 24th inst., and on June 20 following will have completed the fifty-eighth year of her reign. It has been one of the greatest periods in the world's history and marks a physical and intellectual progress unparalled in time Above all it is the most brilliant epoch in the history of the British Empire, ever to be renowned for the splendid galaxy of great men and women it has produced, Among these no name will stand forth more illustrious or more imperishable than that of Victoria I. As sovereign and woman her life has been open as the day, to be observed of all men, and it has been from the beginning pure, honest and unsullied. As wife, mother and Queen she is peerless among women.

The eighteenth birthday of the Princess Victoria, when she came of age, was celebrated with great pomp and festivity on the 24th of May, 1837. All England rejoiced in the prospect of a youthful sovereign, who must inevitably soon be called to the throne, for the "sailor king" William IV., was enfeebled by age and disease. A few weeks later he was fast approaching his final hour. June 19, 1837, he received the final consolations of religion at the hands of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and at 2:20 o'clock on the morning of the 20th he passed to that state which king and subject alike must enter and ceased to be King of the British Empire. He died at Windsor Castle, and ere his body was cold messengers were dispatched to Kensington Palace to inform the Princess that she was The messengers were the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Marquis of Conyngham, chamberlain of the palace. Few scenes in Victoria's long reign are more pleasing or more affecting than those in which she heard the news of her accession and received the allegiance of the Ministry and the lords of the privy council. The messengers left Windsor a. 3 o'clock in the morning and arrived at Kensington Palace, in London, at 5. Ine princess was sleeping in her mother's room, which had always been her custom, and was sum-moned hastily; she entered the presence of the messenger wrapped in a dressing gown, with slippers on her naked feet. Conynham told her their errand, and addressed her as "your Majesty." She put out her hand, and they kissed it in homage, and throughout the recital of the news behaved with admirable self-possession and modesty. As they departed she said to the archbishop: "I ask your prayers on my behalf." An hour or two later Lord Melbourne, the Prime Minister, who was soon to acquire an influence with her which he never abused, and which was of untold value in the way of her education in statecraft, called and prepared her for the opening act of the stately drama now to begin. He had prepared her speech to the great council, which was to assemble at 11 o'clock in the reception room of the palace. There were assembled the great officers of State, the Prime Minister and the lord high chancellor, the Archbishop of Canterbury and York, and her uncles, the dukes of Cum-berland and Sussex. With these were to be seen Cabinet Ministers and great peers of the realm, the Duke of Wellington, the Earl of Lansdowne, Sir Robert Peel and a great number of others, the most famous and powerful of her subjects.

Asked whether she would be accompanied or would enter the room alone, she said she would go in alone. When all the Lords were assembled the folding doors were thrown open and the youthful queen en-She wore a plain mourning robe, her hair dressed in close bands about her forehead and in a tight coil at the back of her head. But her aspect and demeanor won the unbounded admiration of all present. Few of those present had ever seen her save perhaps at a distance, for she had been brought up and educated in great seclusion, and now her self-possession and She bowed and read her speech in a clear, unfaltering and sweetly musical voice, and then took the oath for the security of the Church of Scotland. Next the privy councillors were sworn, the royal dukes of Cumberland and Sussex first by themselves. As those two venerable men, her uncles, knelt before her and swore allegiance she blushed to the eyes and kissed them both cordially. It was the only instance during the long ceremony that she showed embarrassment, and her eyes revealed the tenderness of her affectionate nature as she arose from her chair out of regard to the infirmity of her Uncle Sussex and moved toward him with outstretched arms. and the Duke of Wellington declared that had she been his own daughter he could not have desired to see her perform her part better. It was a fortunate thing for the Queen, for Great Britain also, that Melbourne was Prime Minister at the time of her accession. He was a whig, but not a partisan, and his impartiality was often so great that some of the keenest of his own party followers called him a tory at heart. To his hands was committed the first initiation of the Queen in her constitutional duties. He was no longer young, but was not old, and she gave him her confidence. He was as passionately fond of her as he would have been of a daughter, and he always treated her with a sort of parental care, and at the same time with respectful deference. The marriage of the Queen soon became a prominent question, and it was Lord Melbourne's duty to ascertain, if possible, whether she had formed any thoughts on that subject for herself. As a matter of fact, she was already in love with her youthful cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, but he was three months her junior and far from being matured. Nothing had been spoken between the cousins, but in the respective families the idea had long been maturing that this young couple should marry. How widely this fact was known is now difficult to say, nor would it be a matter of grave consideration to the statesmen of England, for royal marriages had been rarely based on affection or personal choice, but were usually considered as affairs of state. Pondering over the subject, Lord Melbourne at last broached it to the Queen. "Was there," he asked with some trepi-dation, "any individual of the other sex for whom she entertained a preference beyond all other men?" Startled and confused the young Queen blushed and inquired whether the information was wanted as a matter of state policy. His lordship replied that under no other cir-cumstances would be have asked the ques-"In that case," said Victoria quite solemnly, "there is one person for whom I enter-tain a very decided preference." "Will your Majesty pardon me for asking "The individual I mean," said the Queen, is the Duke of Wellington." There must have been a twinkle in her eye when she said this, but it baffled Melbourne for the moment. Many months did not elapse before it was no secret that the destined husband of the Queen was to be Prince Albert. Meanwhile preparations for the coronation were going forward, and this magnificent spectacle occured on the 28th of June, 1838, a few days more than a year after the On Feb. 10, 1840, the marriage of the Queen to Prince Albert took place and a new career of hapiness and love was opened be-fore her. The world knows the story by heart. How the Prince year after year grew in popular favor, and what a useful and prudent statesman he became; how all parties came to value his worth, disinterestedness and noble virtues; how he took part in advancing the arts and sciences, and how on more than one occasion his far-seeing statesmanship saved England from emproilment with other nations. The Queen still mourns her husband, though she has nobly borne her sorrow

winds Another Killing Frost.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. HAGERSTOWN, Ind., May 21.-The fourth withering frost for this section during the past ten days covered the ground and growing vegetables this morning, and another is predicted to-night. All corn is being planted the second time, potatoes have fared no better than the corn, and many are planting again. About fifty acres of potatoes were killed in this immediate section. Al Pierce planted one field of ten acres the second time to-day. There will be no cherries, strawberries or raspberries.

Damage in Delaware County. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MUNCIE, Ind., May 21.-The frost last night and to-night has put the finishing touch on the crops and much wheat and corn is being plowed up. Rye, which has not yet been injured, was caught in bloom last night and is killed. The situation is growing alarming to Delaware county farmers, as most of the fruit is gone.

Fruit Frozen Solid. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. VALPARAISO, Ind., May 21.-The hardest freeze ever known in this section at this time of the year visited here last night. Grapes, cherries and all kinds of fruits and vegetables were frozen solid.

Women an Uncertain Quantity. New York Mail and Express. The woman's cause is certainly being boomed in fine style of late. Prince Bismarck now wants the women of Germany marck now wants the women of Germany to turn out in an anti-Socialist crusade and bury the Socialists, just as Dr. Farkhurst's forty thousand brave ladies and true assailed Tammany Hall last fall. He is treading on very delicate ground. If the Iron Chancellor succeeds in getting all the women into the political army, they may, instead of burying the Socialists, turn around and bury the military system that robs them of their fathers, husbands, sons and sweethearts for two years, and in burying the military system would bury Bismarck himself. Governor Waite, of Colorado, helped the women to political power because he believed they would sustain him in his crazy Populistic administration. When they got that power they buried the gentleman of the "bloody bridles" so deep that he has never been heard from since, The New Woman Again. Cincinnati Tribune. WON BY SIR WALTER

BASSETTLAW A HEAD BEHIND IN THE PARKWAY HANDICAP RACE.

Hanover Stakes Captured by Brisk-Other Winners at Gravesend, Louisville and Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, May 21 .- This was a miserable day at Gravesend and only 1,500 of the regulars were in attendance. The track was sloppy in the extreme, and it rained hard all during the racing. Scratches were numerous and a fine card was ruined. The greatest interest was in the Parkway handicap, but when the horses were called to the post only four responded. Bassettlaw rushed off with the lead when the flag fell and at the end of the first half mile had all but Sir Walter in difficulty. At the head of the stretch Sir Walter took the lead by two lengths, but Doggett gradually pulled him back and only won from Bassettlaw by a head in the easiest possible way.' In the Hanover stakes. Heresy was the favorite, although Brisk beat her by a head the last time they met, it being declared that Brisk could not go in the mud. The latter got a running start of two lengths and spread-eagled the field, winning easily, Forum was the only one of the rest of the lot who could go in the mud and he was second. Joe Rogers opened 8 to 1 in the first race, and was backed away down. He got off very badly, ran around his field and won away off with no trouble whatever, showing stake form. A poor lot of maiden three-year-olds started in the second race, with Belmar as the favorite. He ran in the rear until the stretch was reached when he shot to the front and took such a commanding lead that nothing could come anywhere near him. There was a good deal of betting in the fifth race, and Prig was finally settled on as the favorite by a trifle over Captain T. Charade led to the stretch, when Keefe, on Captain T., stole through on the inside and won by threeparts of a length from Charade, Prig third, badly ridden by Penn. Summaries: First Race-Five furlongs. Joe Rogers, 3 to 1, won; Fred Train, 15 to 1, second; Arline, 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:05. Second-One mile. Jockey Fined $100. ST. LOUIS, May 21.-It was a dump from start to finish at the Fair Association races to-day, not a favorite being picked by the talent. The track was heavy and the weather clear and cold. Attendance, 3,000. The event of the day was the third race, a free handicap, won by Linda, under a strong pull. A good deal of money was lost to Oakwood and Urania in this race. In the second race jockey Shields, on Beckey Sharpe, manifested a disposition not to leave the post. So flagrant was his conduct that he was fined 100 and suspended for thirty days. Summarles: First Race-Six furlongs. Sewing Girl, 20 to 1, won; Uncertainty, 50 to 1, second; Saxaphone, 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:20. Second—Five-eighths of a mile. LOUISVILLE, May 21.-Interest centered in the first race at Churchill Downs today, in which Jack Chinn's great Lissak and Walbaum's Lamplighter were entered. Lissak, however, was scratched at the last moment, and the once invincible Lamplighter lowered his celors to Lady Diamond, a fast filly, by the Emperor of Norfolk, and owned by "Lucky" Baldwin. Favorites captured three of the five events. The meeting at Churchill Downs will close to-morrow. The attendance this afternoon was in the neighborhood of six thousand. Track slow. Not a Favorite Won. SAN FRANCISCO, May 21 .- A few knowing ones made a killing to-day though not a favorite won. Fortuna opened at 30 to 1 and those on the inside made haste to get their money on and the odds went down to 15. Fortuna won easily. Jerome and Boreas were regarded as such good things that the bookmakers refused to take any money on them. Both were defeated. First Race-Six furlongs. The Drummer.

Cycler Johnson's Suspension. CHICAGO, May 21.-It is stated here from reliable sources that John S. Johnson, who was suspended by the L. A. W. racing board, pending an investigation into his amateur standing, has been declared a professional. Johnson was suspended by the racing board about a month ago, and was allowed thirty days in which to answer the charges. In company with his trainer, Tom Eck, he went to Philadelphia to see Chairman Gideon and answer the charges. It is said that when Chairman Gideon asked him to produce his prizes won at the different race meets in which he had participated, he was unable to do so, and on this ground, it is stated, he was declared a professional by the unanimous vote of the board, and barred from the amateur ranks for all time to come. It is alleged that the charges against Trainer Eck are extortion. An authority on bicycling in this city stated that Chairman Gideon had been making a quiet investigation into Eck's case, and as the chairman was deliberate in his acts, he has undoubtedly secured evidence which justi-fied his course in the suspension.

A Queer Case. Washington Letter.

A strange case is pending in the District Court here. When the late Commodore Kittson, of St. Paul, died he left property Kittson, of St. Paul, died he left property valued at about a quarter of a million dollars, which he provided in his will should be held by his daughter, Mrs. Roscoe B. Heath, in trust for her children, who should inherit it when they became of age. Last March the dwelling of Mr. Heath was destroyed by fire, and while attempting to rescue their children both parents were frightfully burned. Their lives were despaired of, and on what they supposed were spaired of, and on what they supposed were

WHOLESOME ADVICE.

For People Whose Stomachs Are Weak and Digestion Poor.

Dr. Harlandson, whose opinion in diseases of the stomach is worthy of attention, says when a man or woman comes to me complaining of indigestion, loss of appetite. sour stomach belching, sour watery risings, headaches, sleeplessness, lack of ambition and a general run down, nervous condition, I advise them to take after each meal one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, allowing the tablet to dissolve in the mouth, and thus mingle with the food eaten. The result is that the food is speedily digested before it has time to sour and ferment. These tablets will digest food anyway, whether the stomach wants to or not, be-cause they contain harmless digestive principles, vegetable essences, pepsin and gold-en seal which supply just what the weak stomach lacks.

I have advised the tablets, with great success, both in curing indigestion and to build up the tissues, increase flesh in thin, nervous patients, whose only real trouble was dyspepsia, and as soon as the stomach was put to rights they did not know what sickness was.

A 50-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be bought at any drug store, and, as they are not a secret patent medicine, they can be used as often as desired with full assurance that they contain nothing harmful in the slightest degree; on the contrary, any one whose stomach is at all deranged will find great benefit from the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

their deathbeds they signed a paper appointing Marie M. Heath guardian of the children. The mother, who held the property in trust, died, but the father recovered, and has attempted to control the fortune which the Commodore left the children. As far as can be ascertained he lives peacefully on the most amicable relations with his sister, Marie M. Heath, and is qualified to exercise his parental prerogative. Miss Heath has, however, attempted to restrain him by injunction, and has asked the court to recognize the validity of the paper he signed while believing him-self to be in his last illness. Miss Heath is a stenographer employed in the War Department, and refuses to give any reason for desiring to deprive the parent of the control of the fortune which his children are to inherit upon attaining their majority. A restraining order has been issued, re-turnable on the 23d of May, when it will be decided who is to handle the fortune. It is claimed that Mrs. Heath appointed her sister-in-law guardian when advised that her husband would not survive his injuries, and had no intention of discriminating against him.

HE WAS NOT PROFANE. The Reform Mayor of New York Has

Letter in Philadelphia Press. It was the same day, and just after the friend had finished this conversation, that the Mayor had an experience which he relished very much with a lady of some fifty years of age. The friend had noticed her sitting in the office as he went out, and it ocurred to him that she was among strange company, for her manner was that of great refinement, while the throng that had gathered that day was unusually typical of lower political life in New York. When Mr. Strong granted her the interview that she asked she said to him: "Mayor Strong, I have been among your most ardent admirers for your faithfulness in the discharge of your duty." Here the Mayor bowed politely, looked searchingly at the woman and asked himself whether the subscription which she was going to beg of him would be one that would cost him less than $10 or more than $20. He has a certain rule of limit for the subscriptions which he makes, "But," continued the lady, "there has been one thing which you are reported to have done which has given me great pain, and I have called to see you about that. This was a new tact, an experience which the Mayor had not had before. Surely a person who was going to reproach him was not going to ask for a subscription. So he said: "I am very sorry indeed if I have done anything as Mayor which could have given a woman of your appearance, or in fact any one, pain. Are you sure that I have? What is it?"

"Well, Mr. Strong, it was reported in the papers that you had used profane language, and I felt so uncomfortable when I read that, that I made up my mind that I would come to see you, ask you if it was so, and beg of you, if the report was true, to

"Well, madam, I assure you that the report is untrue. I am not in the habit of using profane language, and I never saw any accusation in public print that I had."
But it was reported in the papers that you said that you did not give a d—, for something or other." "Well, now it is possible that I might have said that. I can't say that I did, or that I didn't.'

"Oh, well then you must have said the word, because they would not dare to report it, if you did not, and I wanted to beg of you not to use profanity any more."
"William," said the Mayor, speaking up to an attendant, "won't you bring me the Bible," and when he had the Bible he opened it, placed it in the lady's lap and said, "Madam, if you will find anywhere in that book any authority for your assertion that the word to which you refer is profanity I shall consider myself to have sinned, and shall regret it. "Oh, but of course the Bible does not mention the word," she said. "but there

s the commandment against profane "That commandment I have not broken." "Well, but you have profanity in your heart when you use that bad word." Then the Mayor took up the Bible and said, "Madam, there is a scriptural injunc-tion in this book which I try very hard not to break while I am sitting here and following my duties, and that is the injunction, 'Judge not that ye be not judged.' It I should say what was in the heart of any man whom I meet here, at least, if should judge that there was evil in his heart, when he made suggestions to me, I should feel that I had disobeyed this injunction." Then, with a few gracious, courteous words, for he saw that the woman was sincere, he dismissed her and she went out of the Mayor's office wondering, a success or not. These anecdotes serve to illustrate the quality of Mayor Strong, which is keeping him fresh, vigorous, healthy-minded, and which causes him to enjoy much of his work which, but for his delight in comedy, would be almost unbearable.

Then He Started. Washington Star. They had been sitting in silence for two minutes, each of which seemed like an age. The clock chimed 11, and she suppressed a "Are you interested in baseball, Mr. Stay-late?" she asked, wearily.

"I used to play shortstop."
"Indeed? I should think that your qualities would not have fitted you for anything but longstop.' A Dutiful Son.

Washington Star. "Father says that if I am a good boy he will take me to see the circus," said Johnny. "That is what he told me," replied his "Weil, you can keep your eye on me and see if I ain't the pride of the neighborhood Father's done me a good many favors, he has, and I'd hate terribly to be the means of making him miss that show." This May Be Looked For, Also, Chicago Record.
